LONDON.

Jan. 18th. 1918.

My dear Mr. Raemaekers,

Thank you very much for the cartoon on Man Power which you were good enough to send us tonight; we are using it in to-morrow's issue, as it is very topical.

You will see that we have been obliged to make a reduction in the size of the paper and I fear this will have to continue.. It has occurred to me that we could do justice to your cartoons, such as the one we published to-day, if we reproduced them two column wide instead of three. The one which we are publishing to-morrow, on the other hand, could not go into two columns. Perhaps you will be good enough to agree to this suggestion. You may be sure that we should not give any reproduction which is at all likely to detract from the value of the picture.

Believe me,

Yours very truly,

Rowland Osmond
